"Blessed are they who have not seen and yet believed," Jesus says in today's Gospel. For those who have not seen to believe, however, we must be good stewards of our faith, living it joyfully and sharing it generously. Then, in our time too, "men and women in great numbers" will be "added to the Lord."

Job Opportunity

Growing, young parish in the Diocese of Austin seeks enthusiastic, spirit-filled Coordinator of Religious Education who is passionate about sharing the love of Christ.

Do your eyes light up when you think about planning curriculum and recruiting and coordinating volunteers for all levels and age groups?

Can you embrace preparing reports and maintaining records, even when you'd rather be running a retreat?

Would you be dedicated to serving your parish evenings and weekends?

If you shouted "yes!" to these questions, then please contact Fr. Keith through the parish office or frkeith@stpatrickhutto.org

Thank you to Deacon Allen, Deacon Gummie and all those who shared their time and their faith with those being formed and prepared to receive the Sacraments of Initiation. May you all continue to share of yourself with those who are new to the faith as well as with those who are new to St. Patrick's.

How can I commit to stewardship of my talents if I don't have any talents?

It would be difficult if you indeed had no talent. Most people, in fact, have several talents, and a few people have many talents. Some people have musical or artistic talents. Others are good at teaching, cooking, organizing things, or encouraging others. Some people work well with children or the elderly, while others are good writers or good listeners.

The number of talents we have is not important. What is important is that we take time to discover the talents we have, develop those talents, and use them for the benefit of others.

In looking at our talents, it is important not to confuse having a talent with excelling in a specific area. For example, you don't have to have the best voice to join the choir; and remember, you can always do one thing better than everyone else, and they can always do something better than you.
